

Seven Stages of Childhood Love

Copyright, 1914, by the Press Publishing Co.
(The New York Evening World.)

By Eleanor Schorer

The Duel.

The Victor.

Her First Dance.

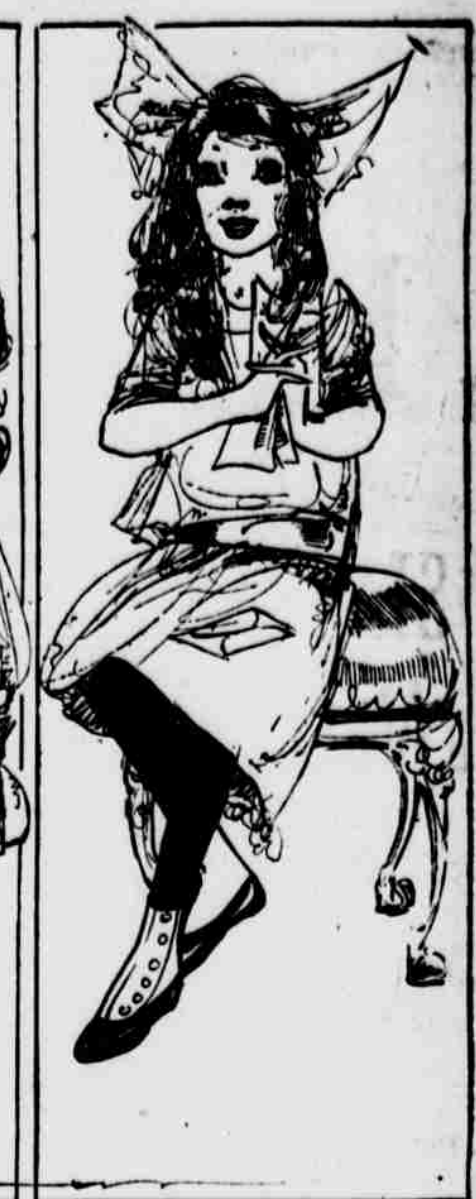

Her First Bouquet.

The First Proposal.

The Parting (Off to School).

The First Letter.

Teaching Father the Tango

Copyright, 1914, by the Press Publishing Co.
(The New York Evening World.)

By P. L. Crosby

GLYNN DEMANDS
ARREST OF ALL IN
HIGHWAY GRAFTWants Results Shown in Prison for Every Man Who Has Cheated State.

After giving in a statement at Albany that he wanted indictments for State highway graft, that "every cheating contractor" should get his just deserts, and that James W. Osborne and John D. Hennessy "understand that unless they produce results satisfactory to me and the public I shall call in some one else who will I shall not permit my administration to be embarrassed by any doubt of my sincerity in these highway investigations."

James W. Osborne hurried to Albany and is ready to-day to begin furnishing the "results." He was trying a case in the Supreme Court when he heard of the Governor's statement, and prepared immediately for his departure. His friends said he was somewhat "ried" and is determined that no one shall make him "the goat" of any criticism that has been or may be leveled at the Governor's administration for failure to prosecute the graft charges made by John A. Hennessy.

There are fifteen specific allegations in the Hennessy charges of graft in as many road contracts. Mr. Osborne intends to start to-day and lay bare every one of the names mentioned in the charges which were submitted to the Governor on Nov. 10. If he succeeds, the names of prominent Democrats, some former office holders and one holding office at present, will be linked with road graft in a public record for the first time.

OSBORNE "DOESN'T WANT HELP, BUT TIME."

"I do not need any help in my investigation," said Mr. Osborne, supposedly referring to the designation of Mr. Deane to aid. "I want time. In a few days I intend to make Albany my home and devote from three to six weeks to investigating."

"I don't care who the persons concerned in these fifteen contracts mentioned by Mr. Hennessy are; whoever they are they will be convicted if the evidence is there. If I find that there is the slightest thing being held back about these fifteen contracts, then somebody will hear from me."

Mr. Osborne made it plain he does not intend to quit the investigation now that he is ready to devote all his time to it, but on the other hand is ready to reveal all the rottenness in the Highway Department. He said he would collaborate with Mr. Hennessy if the latter is willing.

Gov. Glynn yesterday sent the District-Attorney of Columbia and Remond County evidence collected by Mr. Osborne, which the Governor says tends to show the existence of a conspiracy to defraud the counties and the State. The District-Attorneys were instructed to prosecute any State official or contractor deemed guilty of criminal acts in highway construction.

PRISON "FOR EVERY MAN WHO CHEATED STATE."

"Any one who imagines," announced the Governor later, "that I will be satisfied with a pointless and perfunctory investigation of the Highway Department, very much mistakes my mind. The people of New York have the right to know whether their money has been misapplied. They have the right to demand that every man who has cheated the State shall be put behind the bars. And as the Governor of the State I shall not rest until every charge against the management of the State highways has been lifted to the bottom and every thieving scoundrel has received his deserts."

"It makes no difference to me who is hit by these investigations, and I have made this fact plain to those who are conducting the search for evidence."

"There is no partisanship in crime; criminals are of all parties and of no party. Republicans and Democrats look alike to me when they are found plundering the State. And as a Democrat, I shall take particular pains to drive out of public life any Democrat who has been disgracing the party."

Concerning the case in Columbia County, where a road was built by L. L. Mellus of New York City, who is a Republican, the Governor says:

TWO SPECIFIC CASES CALL FOR GRAND JURY ACTION.

"According to this testimony, read specifications were given out and the contract awarded with the private understanding between a public official and the successful bidder that these specifications were subsequently to be changed.

"The evidence tends to show further that bribery was attempted in order to accomplish these results."

The case in Remond County involves repair work done by Contractor Roger P. Kennedy of Utica on a road running east from the city of Remond. The evidence in this case, says the Governor, indicates that "the contractor, having bid too low and finding himself involved in a losing venture, succeeded in having the specifications changed to relieve him."

District-Attorney Whitman seemed confident to-day of supplying the final link that will connect the attempt to extort $150,000 from James C. Stewart, a millionaire contractor, with a "man higher up." Stewart was a witness yesterday at the John Doe hearing, and is to be recalled.

MAN USED THE NAME OF "JAMES E. GAFFNEY."

He said a man calling himself "James E. Gaffney" called on him in December, 1912, to "request a political contribution" of $100,000. Mr. Whitman was ready to have the man indicted yesterday, but Stewart could not say who the man was.

Stewart told in detail the story of the attempt to hold him up for $150,000 that was published exclusively in The World Nov. 14 last. He gave the details of the conversation he held with his visitor and told how, when he failed to "come across" he had lost out on a contract on the large canal for which he had been a bidder. The contract involves about $300,000 and the $150,000 demanded was figured on a basis of 5 per cent.

He spoke with apparent frankness. He admitted the man had given the name of Gaffney; that he had mentioned the name of Joseph D. Carroll and J. Sergeant Cram; that he had talked with him for at least fifteen minutes in his private office at No. 39 Church street; that he had resented the demand and declined to give the money. All this he recalled positively, but he was just as sure that he would not be able now to recognize his unwelcome visitor.

Stewart said he did not know Gaffney and does not remember ever having seen him before. He is well acquainted with other Tammany Hall men, but Gaffney he seemed to have overlooked. Because of this the District-Attorney realized that it would be useless to confront him with the real James E. Gaffney to see if the man who had tried to hold him up for $150,000 looked like the Tammany contractor. There was no absolute evidence, it must be said in fairness, showing that the real Gaffney was aware of the criminal manner in which his name had been employed.

On previous occasions when Gaffney was mentioned he has always expressed his willingness to go before the District-Attorney whenever wanted. To-day friends insisted that Gaffney was ready to oblige Mr. Whitman at any time—that he had nothing to fear and was being maligned because of his connection with Tammany Hall and his friendship for the boss of that organization.

Carmody Denies Stewart Was Paired for Not Giving Up.

ALBANY, Jan. 17.—Attorney-General Carmody denied to-day that the State Canal Board had refused to award certain contracts to James C. Stewart because he did not contribute 5 per cent. of his bid to "James E. Gaffney."

"Politics did not enter into the bidding," he said. "I know nothing of Stewart's story that he was asked for a contribution. The statement that no record was kept of the executive session is false."

AUTO RACE WITH DEATH TO SAVE BURNED CHILD

Parents Lose Dash of Twenty-five Miles on Rough Country Roads With Little Victim.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17.—Death won a race late yesterday, in which the stake was the life of a two-year-old girl, after a father and mother, crazed with grief, had driven an automobile twenty-five miles in forty minutes, in an effort to get their burned daughter to a hospital.

Josephine Juliana, daughter of P. E. Juliana of Blue Anchor, N. J., died in the Pennsylvania Hospital from burns received when the child was playing with matches.

The little girl was conscious during the ride across rough country roads. Mrs. Juliana, at the risk of her life, put out the flames that enveloped her child, then wrapped her in a rug, while her husband got the automobile.

The father and mother were placed under the care of doctors as a result of their strain and mental anguish.

EXPURGATED TANGO.

(As provided for by Miss Anne Morgan's new rules at Castle House.)

If you're anxious for to dance Through a modest little dance With a dainty bit of posing decorated, Let the Castle be your goal. Where for just a trifling toll You can ramble in a tango expurgated.

To the agitated hop They have put the censor's stamp, And likewise to the aggravated wriggle.

They inform you on the side That you mustn't skip, but glide. And they disapprove of e'en the faintest lunge.

Another little tip— You must never shake a hip. Nor make a move that seems to hint at founcing.

And you'll find the moment trite When your body gives a twist— If, indeed, it doesn't earn for you a bouncing.

Avoid the low, fantastic dip. And out on the iron grip On your partner—for be sure you are not wrestling.

Do not swing with all your might. But be in your turns as light As any little feather-flying nestling.

Next they give it to you plump That your arms you mustn't pump— The stunt at issue is not acrobatic. Though the rose may dye your face.

Do not try to paint the dance in hues chromatic. These few instructions o'er, You are free to take the floor. Hail you forth from San Francisco, or Durango.

Bear these simple rules in mind. Graceful pleasures you may find: But it's awful sure you will not find the tango.

—M. W. O.

GIRL PREFERRED JAIL
TO RETURNING HOME
WITH HER MOTHERArrested as Incurable, She Goes to Crittenden Institution
Rather Than Home.

Blanche Weiss, sixteen years old, the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Weiss of No. 387 East One Hundred and Fifty-seventh street, resisted every plan of Magistrate Appleton, her mother and the probation officer in Morrisania Court to-day that she make up with her mother after a quarrel with her home. The girl, who is plump and unusually pretty, turned her back on her mother and stubbornly insisted that she would rather go to a reformatory or even a prison than live with her mother. At her request she was committed to the Florence Crittenden Home. Her mother left court with her face in her hands, sobbing.

Policemen Pens of the Morrisania station came on the mother and girl quarrelling in Morris avenue, near their home, late last night. The mother asked for the girl's arrest as incorrigible, saying she stayed out late and that her friends were bad boys.

In court the mother explained that she had asked for the arrest as a means of frightening the girl into obedience. She asked to be allowed to withdraw the charge and take Blanche home.

"I will not go home," cried the girl. "My mother has had her chance and she has lost it by this thing she has done to me, making me out a bad girl."

Magistrate Appleton sought to shake the girl's decision. He sent the mother and girl into his private office to try to make up and later sent a probation officer and joined them himself. In the end he suggested the Crittenden Home and Blanche eagerly grasped at the chance of going there.

Waitman Watch Company Appeals.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The Waitman Watch Company appealed to the Supreme Court to-day from the decision of the New York Federal Court

News Oddities

FRESNO COUNTY, Cal., is cutting real ice for the first time in its history.

THIS TIME it happened in Summit, N. J. Woman hides $125 in stove; forgets about it and lights a fire; four silver quarters and ten copper cents saved from the wreck.

"WILD DEER" in Jersey are robbing the haymows, and thrifty farmers want the game laws revised.

PROF. WILLIAM H. TAFT, assessed by the New Haven tax collectors $4,500 for an automobile, says it's an exaggeration; the machine is worth only $2,000.

LEG MUFFS are an addition to the Paris fashions on account of the unusually severe winter in France.

TIPS FOR WAITERS are a necessity, the Illinois Athletic Club at Chicago decides, and hereafter will make a gratuity a part of the restaurant check.

FIRST STRAWBERRIES of the season from Texas are in market, a month earlier than ever before.

which held that its contract fixing the resale prices of watches by retailers violated the Sherman law. The company claims they are within the protection of the Patent laws and that its case differs from other resale prices cases recently before the court.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DEFORMS THE MOUTH

Lord Ashbourne Blames It for "Thin Lips, Long Teeth and of a Measly Rabbit Look."

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Lord Ashbourne in a speech at a meeting of the Gaelic League in Fermanagh declared that speaking English continually deforms the mouth. He described Englishmen as having thin, prominent lips, long front teeth and the general appearance of a measly rabbit.

The German language, Lord Ashbourne said, was strong and vigorous. The English language was a state of weakness and decay.

Do You Suffer Even Though You Diet?

If so try eating anything your appetite craves and with each mouthful take a bit of MAN-A-CEA WATER.

A Natural Mineral Spring Water. It assists nature in promoting good digestion, prevents acidity, fermentation, and stops that distressing after eating. Get on request.

CHARLES & CO. and other first-class Grocers and Druggists.

World Wants Weak Wonders